Weather Key Points

Regional Operations Center

Western Region

Tuesday, October 4

- Dry and warm October weather will prevail across the state through Friday, with low to locally moderate heat risk concerns developing into mid-to-late week, as afternoon temperatures warm 10-15 degrees above normal for many areas
- Fire weather conditions will remain locally elevated across the southern California mountains and foothills through at least Friday, and possibly into the weekend, as winds remain breezy, though critical fire weather conditions are not expected
- Isolated showers and thunderstorms could return to the southern California mountains Saturday through Monday. A few storms also can't be ruled out over the southern deserts and in the central or southern Sierra.
